OLD FAVOURITES JUST KEEP GETTING BETTER

NJ Phillips Pty Ltd, the precision instrument specialist, has released new and improved models of its two flagship instruments.

The 20ml metal drencher and the 5ml metal vaccinator are regarded in the animal health industry as the preferred choice for their respective applications, according to Ian Stretton, regional manager for Asia Pacific.

"Well, now they are even better," Mr Stretton said.

"Our policy is one of continuous improvement. It's just not possible to leave a good thing alone!"

"We are always looking for advanced methods in design and smarter techniques in manufacturing and, along with the continued advancement in raw materials, we have combined all these resources to release new models of our old favourites.

"Apart from our improvement policy, the constant development of new drench and vaccine formulations make it necessary for us to keep pace and ensure that our distribution network has quality instruments to satisfy its customers' many and varying needs."

Mr Stretton said both the 20ml metal and the 5ml metal were originally released around 40 years ago and have gradually evolved over the years.

"Although the new models remain similar in looks and operation to the early designs, they have many new features to ensure the same reliability, accuracy and innovation that are hallmarks of the company founded in 1931 by Norman Phillips," he said.

"It is by not deviating from these original ethics, that NJ Phillips Pty Ltd is able to guarantee that these new instruments are not only the best you can buy today, but will keep on providing years of faithful service."

To help celebrate their release, NJP is having a special spring promotion that includes both new model instruments, their respective major service kits, a pack of hypodermic luer lock needles, all packed in a handy tool box – nearly $300 worth of retail value – but at a special promotional price. ■
